

Samoa: ADRA's Response in Pictures

17 December 2009

An 8.3 magnitude earthquake on 29 September 2009 (local time) caused a tsunami that devastated communities and coastlines

ADRA has distributed food, water, non-food items, garden kits and kitchen kits to the three communities of Saleapaga, Satitua and Saleaumua, on the main island Upolu.

ADRA is also supporting communities through a cash-for-work program that is providing vital income for community members, supporting the recovery of the local economy and enabling the clean-up of affected areas. ADRA is also providing disaster risk reduction training to enable communities to identify their own disaster risks and how to reduce them in preparation for any future disasters.
